Wheaton Van Lines, Inc. Becomes the Official Mover of the WBCA

ATLANTA, Ga. (July 15, 2004) -- The Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) recently welcomed Wheaton Van Lines, Inc. to its growing list of supporters as the official moving company of the 5,000-member organization.

The Indianapolis based company will provide complete moving services for the WBCA National Convention through 2007 and a dedicated toll-free telephone number for WBCA members to arrange moves.

"The WBCA is honored to partner with such an outstanding company who is committed to supplying supreme customer service throughout the world," said Beth Bass, WBCA CEO. "Wheaton has proved to be the best at its craft and we are happy to welcome them to the world of women's basketball."

Wheaton Chairman of the Board and CEO Stephen F. Burns is equally excited about the partnership. "The WBCA's reputation as a top-flight organization precedes it, and as a van line this is exactly the type of relationship we try to cultivate," Burns said. "Wheaton's philosophy of putting people first hasn't changed in the 60 years we've been moving lives. We're certainly looking forward to providing the WBCA and WBCA membership with the kind of high-quality, reliable service everyone now expects from Wheaton."

Established by Earnest S. Wheaton in 1945, Wheaton is the only employee-owned van line in the industry. Financially strong, with a network of more than 300 authorized agents in the U.S. and representatives virtually around the world, Wheaton provides the highest quality of interstate and international transportation and relocation services. At Wheaton, we don't just move things. We move your life.
